JOURNAL SCOPE

Health Research in Africa (HRA) is an open source, monthly scholarly, multidisciplinary, peer reviewed medical journal that is partnered to Health Sciences and Disease, the official publication of the Faculty of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences (FMBS) of the University of Yaoundé I. Numerous basic health data from African and other developing countries are still lacking in the medical literature and HRA seeks to fill this gap. Therefore, HRA covers all aspects of medicine, pharmacy, biomedical and health sciences, including health technologies, public health and societal issues. However, HRA values mostly pertinent applied research articles with impact on clinical care or public health.

It is an "online first" publication, which means that all the publications articles appear on the website before being included in the print journal. The papers are published in full on the website, with open access. Our mission is to inform and educate the health professionals, especially from Africa and other developing countries, and to promote constructive debate on health issues that matter in the management not only of diseases but of health as a whole.

Acceptance of manuscripts is based on the originality, the quality of the work and validity of the evidence, the clarity of presentation, and the relevance to our readership. Publications are expected to be concise, well organized and clearly written. Accepted articles benefit from language editing and illustrations enhancement, where necessary. Authors submit a manuscript with the understanding that the manuscript (or its essential substance) has not been published other than as an abstract in any language or format and is not currently submitted elsewhere for print or electronic publication.

EDITORIAL POLICIES AND ETHICS

HRA's Publications Policy Committee follows the recommendations of the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors (ICMJE), the World Association of Medical Editors (WAME), and the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) for guidance on policies and procedures related to publication ethics. The policies for HRA have been adapted from those three advisory bodies and, where necessary, modified and tailored to meet the specific content, audiences, and aims of HRA.

PEER REVIEW PROCESS

Manuscripts are initially checked by the editor in chief or section editor for identification of gross deficiencies. At this stage, the proposal may be rejected. After this initial screening, articles are sent to two-reviewers. The review process may take days to weeks to reach a decision that is ultimately made by the Editor in Chief. The duration from submission to publication may take one to six months (average: six weeks).

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (AI) – ASSISTED TECHNOLOGY

At submission, the authors should disclose whether they used artificial intelligence (AI)–assisted technologies in the production of the publication and how AI was used. However, authors should not list AI and AI-assisted technologies as an author or co-author, nor cite AI as an author. Currently, AI is used by the editors of HRA during the review, editing and production process.

ARTICLE PROCESSING CHARGES (APC)

Article submission is free of charges, but if your paper is accepted for publication, you will be asked to pay article processing charges (about 300 $) to cover publications costs, depending on the type, complexity and length of the work, and on the number of authors. Inquiries about fast track, manuscript status and preparation, as well as letters to the editor, should be directed to the Editor in Chief. Processing charges are due in case of retractation after editing or publication.
